STYLIST GEETA Khanna's (pictured) first book, Style of India (Hachette India), was launched by the French Embassy in Delhi on Friday evening. Known for her work in preserving and promoting the arts and crafts of India, Khanna combines her extensive research with lavish visuals for the volume, which spans the country's fashion and style history from the Harappan civilisation to contemporary Indian fashion. Style of India brings together 300 visuals from archival material and recreations of drapes and accessories over centuries. Khanna has studied at Delhi University as well as the National Institute of Fashion Technology in Delhi, and has worked with Marc Jacobs in New York.
